

Medical Education Partnership Initiative Scholarships to attend SARETI Modules

The US National Institutes of Health (NIH) with the President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR) have collaborated to form the Medical Education Partnership Initiative (MEPI) which aims to strengthen medical education in Sub Saharan Africa. MEPI is a joint effort from the office of the U.S. Global AIDS Coordinator, the Health Resources and Services Administration, the Centres for Disease Control and Prevention, the Department of Defence, PEPFAR and 19 components of the NIH.

The University of KwaZulu-Natal MEPI Programme is offering ten scholarships for Research Ethics Committee members/health care professionals employed at international MEPI sites to attend the South African Research Ethics Training Initiative's (SARETI) modules on Institutionalizing Ethical Review of Health Research and Ethical Issues in HIV Vaccine Trials. The SARETI programme PI is Professor Doug Wassenaar.

Overview

The aim of this training programme is for MEPI biomedical staff and researchers to gain theoretical and practical knowledge in the ethical review of complex research protocols such as those for HIV prevention trials, and in institutionalising research ethics review in their home institution.

Duration: 2 weeks

Dates: 25-29 August 2014 & 01-05 September 2014

Venue: University of KwaZulu-Natal, Pietermaritzburg, South Africa

Module Description

Module 1: Ethical issues in HIV preventative research

This module will expose students to the complexities and controversies associated with ethical issues in complex multinational trials of HIV prevention products, and cover relevant international and local ethical guidelines. This module provides a useful platform from which to debate international collaborative research undertaken in resource-poor settings with vulnerable populations of varied cultural backgrounds on a socially stigmatizing condition. Students will apply ethical thinking to particular circumstances in HIV prevention research. The module also addresses informed decision-making, standard of care, payment to participants and enrolment of adolescents and children.

Module Coordinator: Prof Graham Lindegger

Module 2: Institutionalizing Ethical Review of Health Research

This module focuses on implementing institutional ethics review of research. It covers all aspects of Ethics Review Committees' functioning; requirements; existing international and national African guidelines; different models; relationships with host institutions; and facilitating and maintaining institutional change. Conflict management between members of REC's or different REC's in multi-centre trials is also addressed.

Module Coordinator: Prof Mariana Kruger

Module Assignments

Substantial time is allocated between lectures in which attendees are expected to prepare and complete a written assignment for each module. The assignments are compulsory and acceptance of the award implies acceptance of this condition. On successful completion of the training modules and submission of written assignments participants will receive a certificate of completion from SARETI.
